BIO DESIGNER:

Andrea Steidl graduated in Industrial Design at the Politecnico di Milano in 2005, and immediately began his career at Patricia Urquiola's studio, where he held the role of Creative Manager until 2016. In 2016 he founded /à r o / Studio with Raquel Pacchini. Thanks to a creative process based on strategic research, the studio convert their inputs into a system of values, in order to create an unique vision for their clients through an integrated system of strategy, graphics and products. Steidl founds his creative path by researching the relationship between the components of the project, observing the behaviors linked to the daily use of objects and by the ideation of formal concepts that he represents through drawing.
