

Sparass Sparass, floor lamp

EDITION
Delvis () Limited edition of 6

Espace Aygo

Sparass Sparass floor lamp begins with loofah, the fruit of a gourd related to the cucumber, left to dry in the sun until the skin, flesh and seeds are gone. Following the logic of growth rather than design, its fibres form a natural vascular network, and scatter the light, creating a warmer glow while highlighting the material's natural irregularity.

DETAILS

BODY:	Loofah, oak, steel
SIZE:	W: 80 x H: 150 cm D: 28.34 x H: 14.96 in
NET WEIGHT:	35 kg
YEAR:	2026
PRICE:	Upon request

MORE INFO:

The loofah is opened and filleted, with the core removed as in preparing a fish. The sections are then stitched together, while the natural shape and curvature of the fruit determine the final form. The designer's intervention is limited to the cut and the seam.

As every loofah grows differently, each lamp is unique to the fruit it comes from. These variations are embraced as part of the material's natural character, rather than treated as imperfections.

BIO DESIGNER:

Espace Aygo is a design collective, a home, workspace, and creative playground within a 20th-century Belgian house. The collective functions as a single entity, with four individuals crafting everything—from spoons to sofas, baths to cat-boxes—with functionality proven through use. Their work highlights the transformative power of objects and spaces, shaping new ways of being, doing, and knowing. Objects are treated as catalysts for change, capable of inspiring behaviors and altering patterns.

As world-builders, they challenge the dominance of a single reality, embracing multiple rich and valid realities. Their creations serve as portals to these realms, inviting exploration of diverse narratives.